Honestly, I've never noticed that myself. I think that assisting with rent or a security deposit could be considered assistance with finding a home, but it could also include services like assisting the client in searching for a home but not necessarily providing financial assistance. I'm ok with it including rent assistance, given that there is currently no explicitly stated "paying rent" option.

Subject: Client Survey

Hi Emily,

I just had a sub ask me a question about the survey that I'd never been asked before or noticed before. On the first page there is "finding a home" as a service received and it goes on to list "paying electric/gas bills", etc. There is not a "paying rent" option. To me, "finding a home" should be interpreted as just that, not as "paying rent". Correct?

Carrie
